Re: Interpreting 2013 District SAT School Day Reports

please forward to counselors or appropriate staff, as needed.

During the last week of July, the College Board sent notice to district superintendents and high school principals about an upcoming training opportunity, in regards to interpreting the 2013 district SAT School Day Reports. The first training was held this Wednesday; a duplicate to the training will occur on Monday, August 12th. This invitation is being extended to SAT Points of Contact and District Test Coordinators. For a summary of the training, times, and a registration link for Monday's training, please see below.

An online workshop will be conducted twice for Idaho educators to help them interpret their SAT School Day Reports. Participants in this workshop will also discuss effective strategies for using the SAT Skills Insight tool, the Official SAT Online Course, and the PSAT to drive student achievement.
